RESEARCH ARCHIVES

Introduction

The collection of the Research Archives today is approaching 50,000 volumes. To date, we have processed 330,000 records into our online catalog. It’s hard to believe that forty years ago, prior to the 1970 consolidation of University library materials into the Joseph Regenstein library, the Oriental Institute library had approximately 50,000 volumes in its collection and 400,000 index cards in its card catalog. It has taken nearly forty years to rebuild the collection. After the 1972–73 foundation of the Research Archives under the directorship of John A. Brinkman, the greatest library transformation came in the form of electronic library catalogs and the launching of the Research Archives online catalog in 1990 (http://oilib.uchicago.edu). From 1990 until 2004, 130,00 records were cataloged. In only the past five years, however, we have more than doubled that number.

Our online catalog has always been a leader in the field of ancient Near Eastern studies. Not only is it a book-finding tool for the library, it also serves as an interface to bibliographic research, indexing the ever-increasing volume of publications appearing in our fields of study. Fortunately, my predecessors in the Research Archives have been quite forward-thinking and made this catalog accessible to the public as well as to the scholarly community. While the collection of the Research Archives is not publicly accessible, being open only to members, students, staff, and faculty of the Oriental Institute, our public face remains the Oriental Institute Web site and our online catalog. This relationship is becoming more important as information quickly turns digital, allowing for instant publication and distribution across the globe.

Contemplating our user base, it is immediately apparent that the number of our internal patrons is rather limited to the “regulars”: long-time faculty, Ph.D. students, and project staff. However, our public presence on the Web has a potentially limitless pool of researchers, restricted only by the size of the fields of ancient Near Eastern studies and the public’s interest. When it comes to making our work available, the Oriental Institute is truly leading the field. Through generous help from our supporters, the Oriental Institute has begun offering digital copies of its publications for free over the Internet. This means that scholars and the general public alike can conduct research through Oriental Institute publications anytime and anywhere an Internet connection is available.

As the head of the premier research library for the ancient Near East in the Western Hemisphere, I believe open access to our research materials is a crucial step toward increasing public awareness of our science as well as leveling the playing field for scholars who may not have access to collections such as the Research Archives. In that vein, the Research Archives has begun scanning out of copyright material and making it available for download through our online catalog. Within the last year, we have scanned over 100 volumes which are now freely accessible. Through these efforts, we hope not only to advance knowledge within our fields, but also to make it possible for anyone with the desire to share in our passion for all things ancient Near East.

Acquisitions

Our acquisitioning efforts were strong again in 2008–2009 and we saw a 15 percent increase over last year in the number of volumes acquired. However, this number fluctuates depending upon the increasing cost of books and shipping as well as the number of books published in any given year. The increase is mostly the result of the sale of our duplicate material to Dove Book Publishers, providing us with additional purchasing revenue; acquisition of de-accessioned Regenstein material; processing of volumes long held in storage; and an increase in donations, which also constituted an important portion of our acquisitions this year. The following numbers reflect our monthly acquisitions over the past twelve months:

Online Catalog

As described briefly in the introduction above, the online catalog of the Research Archives continues to be an indispensable tool for bibliographic information concerning ancient Near Eastern studies. In the past year, we have added approximately 35,000 new records to the catalog, bringing the total number of records in the catalog to 330,000. All new material acquired by the Research Archives has been cataloged and we are currently working our way through the retrospective cataloging. The monographs are now finally nearing completion, with only twenty shelves or three columns from Pa to Pr to go. By the time you read this report, we should be completely finished cataloging the monographs, bringing us one step closer to complete coverage of the Oriental Institute’s library collection.

Only the pamphlets and the journals remain in our retrospective cataloging project. Perhaps 40 percent of the journals have been cataloged and less than 20 percent of the pamphlets, leaving a massive job ahead that will easily take five to seven years to complete at our current pace. Only a sudden influx of funds or volunteers will reduce this estimate. However, we have been very successful at incorporating links to online material into our catalog. We now have approximately 65,000 links to online publications. The majority of these links connect to journal articles, a list of which you will find below. This allows researchers the incredible convenience of going straight to an article or book from our catalog from any Internet connection in the world. Twenty percent of our catalog records already link to online files and as we continue to compile such links, more and more patron searches of our catalog will not only result in bibliographic information, but the item itself! In the near future, we will be adding the 581 links to articles from Studien zur älttägyptischen Kultur, the many thousands of links to reviews from Orientalistische Literaturzeitung, and the large collection of articles from Biblica.

Resources on the Web

In addition to the online catalog, the Research Archives maintains a series of open access online resources.

Dissertations

With the permission of the authors, we make available dissertations completed in the Department of Near Eastern Languages and Civilizations of the University of Chicago (http://oi.uchicago.edu/research/library/dissertation/). In the past year we added the following:

Acquisitions Lists

The acquisitions reports of the Research Archives are distributed in .pdf format on a monthly basis. This process has been active and continuative since September 2007.

Monographs

Our biggest addition to online resources this year has been the collection of books available through links in the online catalog. The following books are now available:

Visitors

The Research Archives is a popular place for visiting scholars and we have had the pleasure to accommodate the research trips of many individuals, including (in alphabetical order): Tzvi Absuch, Jeff Blakley, Roman Gundacher, Hiroshi Hirayama, Chuck Jones, Isaac Kalimi, Jake Lauinger, Michel al-Maqdissi, John Nielsen, Luigi Prada, Seth Sanders, Andreas Schachner, Andreas Stauder, Julie Stauder, Sami Uljas, Steve Vinson, Avi Winitzer.

Acknowledgments

We continue to foster a very active exchange program with sister institutions worldwide. Our exchange relationships rely heavily on the dedicated staff of the Journal for Near Eastern Studies and I would like to especially thank Drew Baumann, Wadad Kadi, Chris Woods, and Kathy Mineck. Year in and year out, Tom Urban, Leslie Schramer, and the entire Publications Department are steadfast in their support of the Research Archives, continually finding extra copies of Oriental Institute publications for exchange. I would like to offer my sincere appreciation to Emily Teeter, a most thoughtful and conscientious donor. Emily believes that the Research Archives is at the heart of the Institute and her support has been unwavering.

Despite the cringing of some among the senior generation within the building, we have had a very close and beneficial relationship with Catherine Mardikes and the Regenstein Library. In fact, Catherine sends us material de-accessioned from the Regenstein. Many of these volumes had been housed in the Oriental Institute prior to the 1970 consolidation and she has been generous in their return. Visiting scholars Dr. Michel al-Maqdissi donated several important volumes concerning Syrian archaeology and Dr. Andreas Schachner donated very useful offprints of the Hattusha preliminary reports. Chuck Jones and Magnus Widell, my predecessors in the Research Archives, continued to be of immense help, answering any sort of esoteric library mystery I could not solve.

Of course, my hardworking staff members are the cogs in the machine that is the Research Archives. Their help not only makes working here a joy, but it further enables us to constantly improve our library, maintaining its status as a premier research collection. Laura Holzweg, NELC graduate student studying Islamic archaeology, has been working her way backwards through the retrospective cataloging of monographs. Kayo Anthony, who has since left to continue graduate work at the Art Institute of Chicago, processed many new acquisitions as well as worked her way forwards through the retrospective cataloging of monographs. Lori Calabria, NELC graduate student studying Egyptology, has been a most versatile employee, cataloging, adding links, and taking over for Kayo in processing new material. Their work is crucial to the maintenance of the Research Archives and it is appreciated.

This year we have been lucky enough to have the help and support of several wonderful volunteers — a new development in the Research Archives. Having become friends with this new crop of volunteers and having truly enjoyed their company in the library, I wonder why we have not tapped into these resources earlier. Stephanie Duran, a local artist and knitter extraordinaire, has done an incredible job in her retrospective cataloging of journals as well as adding links to online material. Many of you will know Suzan Barzagan who is a docent at the Oriental Institute. Suzan has begun the monumental task of cataloging the reviews from Orientalistische Literaturzeitung. Also a familiar face around the OI, known from his perch in the Suq, Ray Broms spent many hours scanning books from our collection so that they can be placed online with open access. Their generosity and hard work help make the Oriental Institute Research Archives what it is today.
