KLAUS BAER has been doing extensive research on Egyptian chronology of the third millennium B.C.; he has found the evidence of the widely used Turin papyrus to be unreliable and has been constructing a revised chronology on the basis of contemporary inscriptions. He believes that dates for the Old Kingdom, contrary to expectation, can probably be established within a range of approximately thirty years either way. During 1978/79 Mr. Baer has given lectures on various topics at Berkeley, Columbia (Archeology and Chronology Seminar), Philadelphia, San Francisco, Seattle, and Toronto.
